

As a user of the web application, I want to be able to search for recommended movies using random words, so that I can discover movies that I might not have found through traditional keyword searches.

To use the random words/search function, I will navigate to the search bar on the main page of the application. Instead of entering specific keywords, I will click on a "Random Words" button or link, which will generate a list of words that are not related to movies or film.

I will select one or more of these random words and use them to search for recommended movies. The application will use sophisticated algorithms and machine learning techniques to recommend movies that match the random words in unexpected ways. For example, if I choose the random words "cactus" and "butterfly", the application might recommend a movie about a desert flower that attracts butterflies.

When I click on a recommended movie, I will be able to see a detailed description of the movie, including information such as the plot, cast, and rating. If I decide that I want to watch the movie at a later time, I will be able to add it to my watch later list with a single click.

In addition to being able to add movies to my watch later list, I will be able to like or dislike recommended movies by clicking on a thumbs-up or thumbs-down icon. This will allow the application to better understand my preferences and provide more accurate recommendations in the future. If I like a movie, I will see more movies that are similar to it. If I dislike a movie, I will see fewer movies that are similar to it.

If there are any errors or issues, I would like to see clear error messages that explain what went wrong and how I can resolve the problem. For example, if the random words/search function is not working properly, I would like to see a message that says "Sorry, we're experiencing some technical difficulties with the random word generator. Please try again later." If I am still having trouble, I would appreciate a link to a helper page with possible solutions and instructions.

Overall, the ability to search for recommended movies using random words will make it much easier for me to discover new and interesting movies that I might not have found through traditional searches. The ability to like, dislike, and manage my watch later list will help the application provide more accurate recommendations in the future.
